CREATIVE CORNER

PERSEPHONE

It was never my intention To be less than extraordinary

I was born, the daughter
Of the kings and god
In my own right,
I am a goddess
Yet, I, the little girl
you see,
Is held captive...

Believe me when I say,
I plucked the seeds
Of my own accord
And Hades,
He did not place
My crown upon my head

Does this duality not fascinate you?

I am both,
A maiden goddess of life

And the queen of all that's dead
I bring you the spring, Bursting with light.
And it is I who leaves
you with winter,
Cold, dark and dreary

I am Persephone, Bow before me, Because
When you will be lying dead,
I will be your queen
It is I, Persephone...

Idiosyncrasy

To flock is a feather, a feather of a bird,
A bird with two wings ceases to fly.
To question is human, to wonder is our right.
Our values wither away without asking why.

Everyone talks so much, and says so little,
And it seems it would kill them to listen.
Once great minds, fade into the rabble.
Join your hands and join the grief stricken.

A beautiful voice silenced by its own ignorance,
What is it to be blind with both eyes?
Weep, my brothers, weep,
For they do not even want to realize.

To be content is not happiness, to be obtuse is not wise,
To follow without thought is a sham,
is a lie
To opine is a feather, a feather of a bird,
A bird with two wings starts to fly.
