“A splash of creativity and rhythm”— a beautiful artwork by Aradhya Khurana (VIII-I) and a heartfelt self-composed poem by Samah Khan (VIII-F)

The Unlit road

Walking briskly down the road ablaze,
Every soul she passed & cherished was dragged away without a trace.
Awaiting rescue, there she stood;
Brick by brick and intangible wall she made
Which, much to its dispiritedness, Darkness failed to penetrate
But even then, it thought it could
So, it did what all it took ‘Unfortunate’ indeed it was
All alone on the road
No angels, no bible, there was no god
Albeit, strangled prayers managed to reach the Lord.
Meanwhile, Darkness saw an open door,
So, into the ‘intangible’ wall it crawled.

It slipped inside the young girl’s mind

But the maiden’s mind was such a place,

It left even Darkness traumatized

In the dim atmosphere something caught its gaze—

Intrigued by a distant memory so far away

The young girl could now be seen once more

There she was on the cold concrete floor.

Hysteria palpable, tears streamed down her sullen face

She had no wishes, no wants but one.
